MCGS Volunteers - “Missing in America”

Missing in America is a nation-wide effort to locate, identify, rebury, and honor the unclaimed remains of forgotten veterans in National Cemeteries throughout the United States.

Headed by Cathy Gowdy, volunteers from the Marin County Genealogical Society have been working on the “Missing in America” project for the last several months.

We are currently researching the people who were buried at the Marin County Farm Cemetery and we have discovered several veterans buried there who will qualify to be interred at a United States National Cemetery. Watch our newsletter for details about the veterans buried at the Marin County Farm Cemetery.

What has been fascinating about researching the people buried at the Marin County Farm Cemetery, is that they encompass the entire American experience through the mid 20th century. We will also be posting profiles in our newsletter of a broad range of interesting men and women whose lives were uncovered by our researchers.
